Even more positively, a recent poll by the Academy of Management, whose non-US membership has now exceeded 80% from a little over 50% in 2015, revealed that MOR has been found to be one of the top five journals that Academy of Management (AOM) members consistently read.. The Reiter award is named for, Charles E Morrison Professor of Managerial Economics and Decision Sciences at Kellogg.. We contend that the propensity of new ventures to internationalize by forming international partnerships is higher in small-domestic demand countries because they have a greater motivation given their limited local demand.. In the qualitative section of the AOM survey, respondents offered comments such as: 'If you want to get a deep understanding of key management problems that transforming economies face, then MOR is by far your best source'.

These findings are likely to apply to all of the Chinese manufacturing industries that existed prior to 1978 and that subsequently did not experience significant technological changes and were not highly protected by the government.. Today's industrialized economies are very different from the economies before the industrial revolution.. The workshop will again have a stellar group of scholars presenting their ideas about how to make qualitative reseach powerful.. The format this past year proved very successful for learning how to do qualitative research well.. But in 1804 a Frenchman invented a continous paper machine revolutionized the manufacturing and started the modern paper making industry.. This book edited by Peter Hedstroem and

Richard Swedberg provides a very good introduction to the approach.
